

Ignite powerful unity and passion at work, school and community.

M.E.S.H. Management™

Deeper Team Building that Creates a Unity of Strength in Times of Both Trial and Triumph

Create a community at school, work or the broader community that has identity, knows what it must do, clearly understands what its success is, and is characterized by genuine happiness.

The Universal House of Justice describes community as "more than the sum of its membership... it is a composition of diverse, interacting participants that are achieving unity in an unremitting quest for spiritual and social progress."

Barry says, "I love this description by the Universal House of Justice... an unremitting quest for spiritual and social progress! I address the building of happier, healthier, more prosperous communities; whether they are campus, corporate or community. Bottom line, I do this by centering on three primary aspects of community... its character, its component personalities, and its behaviors." Yes, this is a core passion and skill set of Barry. He does this through what he calls MESH Management™. Check out...
